

TANG CENTER SERIES IN EARLY CHINA

Meet the Editors

Professor Li Feng,
Columbia University

Professor Anthony Barbieri,
University of California, Santa Barbara

March 18, 2023

12:30-1:30PM

Booth 212

Hynes Convention Center

900 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02115

Come and chat about your ongoing or planned book projects and see if the Tang Center Series in Early China would make a good publication venue for them. Learn about our book proposal and review processes, as well as the many advantages of our groundbreaking series.

Coffee and light refreshments will be served.

Private meetings with the editors outside of the event time are possible upon prior arrangement.

Please email Professor Li Feng · fl123@columbia.edu · or Professor Anthony Barbieri · abarbieri@ucsb.edu · to make an appointment.

LI FENG is Professor of Early Chinese History and Archaeology at Columbia University. He has published widely in both history and archaeology of Early China. He is the Faculty Director of the Tang Center for Early China.

ANTHONY BARBIERI is Professor of Chinese History at the University of California, Santa Barbara. He has published numerous books on the social, cultural, legal, and material culture history of Early China.

The event is co-sponsored by the Tang Center for Early China and Columbia University Press
